This meeting will provide heart patients and their caregivers a better understanding of the incredible skill and patient care that nurses provide after open-heart surgery! The meeting will also be a celebration of the nursing profession!!

Florence Nightingale was the trail blazing figure in nursing history—but what nurses do today is awe-inspiring! Following a brief history of open-heart surgery, this presentation will discuss: the handoff of the patient from the surgical team to the ICU nursing team; continuous monitoring of the patient's vitals with x-rays, continuous labs, and other procedures; monitoring the ventilator and the endotracheal and oral gastric tubes; maintaining the chest tubes and foley catheter; and many other tasks including pain management and side effects; and preventing infections and edema.
